

I am a Vietnam Veteran who was drafted in to fight a fight which wasn't ours. Obviously there are a few thousand of us left who can still vote, so, I am assuming that will make a difference. The people who joined the regular Army are more regular in that surely they voluntarily joined. Anyone with half a brain knows basically that an Army goes to war eventually.

But, as Nashos were just plucked off the streets from wherever we happened to be and lost two years of our young lives. Some, believe it or not were actually killed and over 2,300 were wounded

I receive the TPI pension and for that I am really grateful. Without it I wouldn't survive. The extra help with DVA assisted Taxi service and other associated service is wonderful.

The Vets who do not own a home or have other debt related issues then, a financial raise to their Pay would be most acceptable.
