Parliamentary Joint Committee on Intelligence and Security

Review of the National Security Legislation Amendment (Espionage and Foreign Interference) Bill 2017

Issue date: 15 March 2018

Public hearing on proposed amendments to Espionage and Foreign Interference Bill

Tomorrow, the Parliamentary Joint Committee on Intelligence and Security will hold a public hearing in Melbourne on proposed amendments to the National Security Legislation Amendment (Espionage and Foreign Interference) Bill 2017.

On 6 March 2018, the Attorney-General, the Hon Christian Porter MP, provided the Committee with range of proposed amendments, which, in summary:

- create separate secrecy offences that apply to non-Commonwealth officers and are narrower in scope than those applying to Commonwealth officers;
- narrow the definitions of 'inherently harmful information' and 'causes harm to Australia's interests', which form part of the proposed secrecy offences applying to Commonwealth officers;
- strengthen the defence for journalists at proposed section 122.5(6);
- limit the definition of 'security classification' to secret and top secret, and remove strict liability;
- limit the proposed espionage offence at section 91.3 to security classified information that is dealt with for the primary purpose of making it available to a foreign principal.

The proposed amendments have been published on the Committee's website (see Submission 40).

Public hearing details:

8.30am – 12.15pm, Committee Room G7 and G8, 55 St Andrews Place, East Melbourne

A range of government and non-government witnesses have been invited to appear before the Committee. The hearing will be broadcast live at aph.gov.au/live

Detailed hearing programs and further information about the Committee's reviews, including submissions received to date, can be obtained from the Committee's website.

The Committee is continuing its inquiry into the Bill and its proposed amendments, and now intends to present its report to the Parliament in April.
