Re: What is the fiscal cost of Defence Major Project slippage?

Dear Committee

In the current scope of this inquiry, the slippage is 708 months (59 years)!

Is it budgeted for, I would presume not!

Is it currently funded for, I would presume not! Is it a 'bad debt' to the budget?

This supplementary submission to the Major Projects inquiry is based on that 'no' presumption.

The majority, if not all, Defence Major Project files (and problems) would be considered Minister and Cabinet-in-Confidence, but threads become visible and reachable via the Defence Annual Report, ANAO performance audits, Senate Estimates and Parliamentary Committee's Process, and most importantly the Freedom of Information Act 1982.

Now back to the basic question!

What is the fiscal cost of Defence project slippage?

A true answer is that no one will really know, but hints are available ... i.e.

1. When there is a total failure of a project. e.g. Seasprite \$1.4bn
2. When the current retiring Secretary of Defence makes a public statement.
Canberra Times article dated February 20, 2017.
'Consultants and contractors now outnumber public servants in Defence Department'
3. When a Senator asks a written question in Defence Estimates and you find and use it.

I will place my raw information as annexes at the end of this submission.

Obviously, as a private citizen I cannot paint a complete and authoritative solution, but I hope the Secretariat can take my raw data and supposition and more define what I am presenting via its researchers employed within its Secretariat.

Is there a recurrent $30m per month unfunded wages liability in the DMO/CASG?

Is there a recurrent $30m (Department and Contracted) per month recurring unfunded wages liability in the DMO/CASG based on 30% of the total wages bill of people working on Major Projects when you take into account the total wages component of

- APS personnel,
- Defence Uniformed Personnel,
- Consultants to Defence,
- Contractors to Defence and
- Service Providers to Defence.

From a Defence FOI, I have been able to ascertain that on the 30th June 2015 DMO employed 6150 service providers
30th June 2016 CASG employed 6260 service providers
Defence CASG have qualified this answer, please refer to Annex A.

From a Defence FOI and Senate Estimates, the total APS headcount on the 1st October 2011 DMO employed 6134 APS personnel
30th June 2015 DMO employed 4542 APS personnel
30th June 2016 CASG employed 4028 APS personnel
Refer to Annex B for details of APS personnel

From a Defence FOI and Senate Estimates, total uniformed Defence headcount on the 1st October 2011 DMO employed 1316 uniformed Defence personnel
30th June 2015 DMO employed 1534 uniformed Defence personnel
30th June 2016 CASG employed 1546 uniformed Defence personnel
Refer to Annex C for details of uniformed Defence personnel

As a past member, and now civilian, it is very hard to gather accurate figures for a presentation.

I have previously used 'Re-Thinking Systems of Inquiry, Investigation, Review and Audit', and in particular Phase 2: Audit

- RSR audit - First Report Figure 3 - Common Themes Emerging From Audit Reviews of Major Capital Projects
- RSR audit - Second Report

The above does allow transparency through to the "First Principles Review - Creating One Defence" PDF Pages 33-34 of 107

I can only look at the 2015-16 DMO current state given that the new CASG did not come into effect until the 01st July 2015, and was the basis of the 2015-16 MPR.

However DMO legacies remained.

DMO - As at 30 June 2015

Current state

It is clear that the processes in the current capability development life cycle are cumbersome, excessively bureaucratic and inefficient. The organisation is more focused on process adherence than high quality capability outcomes. In our view the following are the most significant, but not the only, shortcomings of the current situation:

For a complete list see Annex D. I have highlighted three points here.

- Institutionalised and costly project slippage;<sup>42</sup>
- Poor management with schedule delays being used to mask cost and technical blowouts and to deflect accountability;<sup>43</sup>
- An almost total absence of common internal review processes and procedures;<sup>45</sup>

With all of the above, the only publicly available costed figures that I can attribute to notified slippage in Defence Major Projects is the cost of its personnel; uniformed Defence, Australian Public Service, private consultants and contractors.

My source for the reference on DMO/CASG uniformed and public personnel came from the Defence Senate Estimates process where Senator Johnston asked a written question in the Supplementary Estimates in October 2011, and follow up Defence FOI questions in 2017.

My source for the reference on DMO/CASG contractors / service providers / consultants originally came from a Canberra Times article 'Consultants and contractors now outnumber public servants in Defence Department' dated February 20, 2017.

Quoted Reference

' Mr Richardson said he was frustrated that after his deep cuts to public service numbers in his department, now down to about 17,200, he was told there were up to 18,000 service providers, consultants and contractors on the books.'

On Page 4, I hope to show the results of my calculations, and in the Annexes the raw data.

Assumption: For this example I am attributing 30% of staff to major projects with slippage.

DMO / CASG levels for uniformed ADF personnel released 02 May 2017

Question: Has this reduction in the Departmental wage bill been moved to that paid to Service Providers, Consultants and Contractors?

On the 30th June 2015 - the DMO had 6,180 Service Providers and Contractors and an unknown number of Consultants. It is my hope that the JCPAA will be able to take the annual monetary (wages, but it is not essential) component, multiply it by 64 years, divide it by 768 months, and then take 30% of that monthly figure to arrive at a suggested monthly "unfunded liability" for this category for the period 2014-15.

On the 30th June 2016 - the CASG had 6,290 Service Providers and Contractors and an unknown number of Consultants. It is my hope that the JCPAA will be able to take the annual monetary (wages, but it is not essential) component, multiply it by 64 years, divide it by 768 months, and then take 30% of that monthly figure to arrive at a suggested monthly "unfunded liability" for this category for the period 2015-16.

I leave the interpretation the extent of this liability to the members of the Committee.

Yours respectfully

Michael Wunderlich

Question: Has this reduction in the Departmental wage bill been moved to that paid to Service Providers, Consultants and Contractors?

Annex A:

The administrative reply from the Department of Defence is as follows:

How many service providers, consultants and contractors were on the books for

1. a. The DMO on the 30 June 2015?

b. If feasible, aa. how many were service providers? There were 6,150 service providers.

bb. how many were consultants? Defence does not report on the number of consultants, expenditure on consultants is reported annually in the Defence Annual Report.

cc. how many were contractors? There were 30 contractors.

c. If unable to provide, why not?

2. a. The CASG on the 30 June 2016?

b. If feasible, aa. how many were service providers? There were 6,260 service providers.

bb. how many were consultants? Defence does not report on the number of consultants, expenditure on consultants is reported annually in the Defence Annual Report.

cc. how many were contractors? There were 30 contractors.

c. If unable to provide, why not?

Please note: This was the data that was reported at the dates request (30 June 2015 & 2016) however as a result of recent investigation we know that the 2016 contractor numbers are likely to be incorrect based on people not applying correct definitions to their contracts or structuring their contracts correctly to achieve the actual intent (ie Service Providers versus contractors). It is the subject of ongoing reform.

Q122 - DMO Staffing

Senator Johnston provided in writing:

As at 1 October 2011, how many APS staff were employed at the DMO, with their salary and classification level?

Response:

The number of Australian Public Service personnel employed in the Defence Materiel Organisation with their salary and classification levels as at 01 October 2011 was 6,134.

A detailed breakdown is as follows:

Annex D: DMO - As at 30 June 2016

Current state

It is clear that the processes in the current capability development life cycle are cumbersome, excessively bureaucratic and inefficient. The organisation is more focused on process adherence than high quality capability outcomes. In our view the following are the most significant, but not the only, shortcomings of the current situation:

- An artificial handover point between Capability Development Group and the Defence Materiel Organisation that complicates the focus on capability outcomes;<sup>35</sup>
- A complexity of organisation and process which has led to an extremely top heavy Defence Materiel Organisation with a structure that, in some cases, is eleven layers deep.<sup>36</sup> This has led to a disempowered delivery organisation;
- Elements of the Defence Materiel Organisation which have little or no perceived value as they are not core to the acquisition and sustainment function;<sup>37</sup>
- An excessive number of System Program Offices evidenced by 83 per cent of expenditure being managed by 31 per cent of System Program Offices;<sup>38</sup>
- A lack of sufficient commercial skills in staff of both Capability Development Group and the Defence Materiel Organisation including capacity to assess and manage risk;<sup>39</sup>
- Capability Managers who are accountable for developing, delivering and sustaining the current and future capability needs of the Services but are remote from the critical requirements definition phase which occurs in the Capability Development Group;
- Inappropriate utilisation of military staff who should be the effective stewards of requirements setting within the rigour of strong, strategic, financial and technical contestability;<sup>40</sup>
- An excessive amount of process<sup>41</sup> in the capability development life cycle which has become a box-ticking, compliance exercise rather than one focused on outcomes;
- Institutionalised and costly project slippage;<sup>42</sup>
- Poor management with schedule delays being used to mask cost and technical blowouts and to deflect accountability;<sup>43</sup>
- An unsophisticated approach to engaging industry, especially early in the project life cycle, and an obsessive focus on adherence to probity and competition requirements;<sup>44</sup>
- An almost total absence of common internal review processes and procedures;<sup>45</sup>
- No appropriately granular mechanism to manage internal cost and schedule and an inadequate methodology for estimating operating and sustainment cost;<sup>46</sup> and
- Failure to adequately project manage all of the Fundamental Inputs to Capability<sup>47</sup> and the lack of a holistic portfolio level investment plan.<sup>48</sup>
