

CFMMEU (Construction and General Division) Response to Questions Taken on Notice

Construction Trade Apprentices

The Chair asked the following questions regarding the pipeline of people coming into the construction trades:

CHAIR: .....What can you tell us about the pipeline of people coming into the construction trades? How many people are currently studying construction trades in TAFE? How many apprentices are there? Can you give us any data on that?

Mr Maxwell: I can take that on notice, and I will provide the latest figures. I should say that I'm the chair of the construction industry reference committee, so I have some knowledge of the training system. Off the top of my head, there are around 50,000 apprentices in training; that would cover first-, second-, third- and fourth-years. The intakes vary from time to time.

CHAIR: That would be the full set of trades?

Mr Maxwell: That's the building trades, including electricians and plumbers and so forth. I will find the exact figures and send them to the committee.

CFMMEU Response:

At the hearing it was stated that the construction trades included "electricians and plumbers and so forth". This is incorrect as electricians are not counted in the Australian and New Zealand Standard Classification of Occupations (ANZCO) construction trades group. The ANZCO category for construction trades includes the following:

- MINOR GROUP 331 Bricklayers, and Carpenters and Joiners
- MINOR GROUP 332 Floor Finishers and Painting Trades Workers
- MINOR GROUP 333 Glaziers, Plasterers and Tilers
- MINOR GROUP 334 Plumbers

The following apprentice training figures are taken from the NCVER publication - Apprentices and trainees 2020 - September quarter

Employment of Skilled Migrants by the CFMMEU (Construction and General Division)

The Chair asked the following questions regarding the employment of skilled migrants by the CFMMEU:

CHAIR: Does the CFMMEU employ any skilled migrants at all, or have they employed skilled migrants?

Mr Maxwell: I can only speak on behalf of the construction division. I can't speak on the CFMMEU as a whole. In terms of the construction division, not to my knowledge, but I will take that on notice and check.

CHAIR: Thanks very much. It would be good to know what sort of roles too.

CFMMEU Response:

On making inquiries within the Construction and General Division of the CFMMEU no one has identified the employment of an employee who was on a temporary skilled migrant visa. Whilst some employees may have entered Australia on a permanent skilled migrant visa, we are not aware of any employees who have been engaged on the basis of being a permanent skilled migrant.

Skill Shortages in the Building and Construction Sector

Senator Henderson asked a question in regard to what evidence the CFMMEU relied on to assert that there are no skill shortages in the building and construction sector:

Senator HENDERSON: How then can you make that assertion, because, albeit this doesn't relate to commercial projects, but, on the ground in the Geelong region, for instance, there are acute shortages of trades in the residential construction sector.

Mr Maxwell: That may be the case, but that's more a question of, I would suggest, the short-term volume of work because of things such as the HomeBuilder, and that shortage will end very quickly.

Senator HENDERSON: There's no evidence that the shortage will end very quickly at all. I'm happy if you want to take it on notice, but I am concerned about the evidence on which you're relying to make the assertion that there are no skill shortages in the building and construction sector. Just anecdotally, I was with the Assistant Treasurer and housing minister the other day in the Geelong region meeting with various construction companies, and there are a lot of widespread issues in relation to accessing trades.

Mr Maxwell: I'll take that on notice.

CFMMEU Response:

The short term nature of the current housing boom was addressed by the HIA in its submission to the Annual Wage Review 2021 (<https://www.fwc.gov.au/documents/wage-reviews/2020-21/submissions/hia-sub-awr2021.pdf>). The HIA said the following:

“There is however, a dark shadow that sits behind HomeBuilder.

The lingering effects of this recession on home building will be due to the change in the rate of population growth and the geographic shifts in population. The impact of the cessation of overseas migration will eventually impact detached housing in the same way it has impacted multi-units. There has also been a rapid demographic shift away from inner city living as commuting to the office becomes less frequent.

School leavers have also remained in regional areas, rather than being attracted to cities for employment and education, adding to the increase in population across most of the country. A change in consumer preference toward lower density detached housing is also partly due to families seeking additional work-from-home spaces.

The combination of the restrictions on migration, the post-HomeBuilder slump and changes in demographics are expected to lead to a decline in new home construction from 2022 and leaves a very pessimistic outlook for home building in 2023. An increase in interest rates is also possible from 2023 onwards and as was observed after the GFC, this will have an immediate adverse impact on housing. Of course, the variables that will impact on housing demand in 2023 are significantly larger than usual for both the upside and the downside. The key policy decisions impacting this outlook is when and how quickly overseas migration will return to pre-pandemic levels.”

On the issue of there not being acute skill shortages of tradespersons in the residential construction sector the CFMMEU relies on the job advertisements for carpenters posted on SEEK (a website referred to by the Chair in the public hearing) and Jobactive (which is the platform required to be used for labour market testing).

The CFMMEU accessed the SEEK and Jobactive websites on 4th May 2021 searching for carpenter positions in the Geelong region. The results of these searches are set out in Attachment 1. The results of the search are summarised below:

SEEK website:

- The search found 119 jobs
- Only 10 of these jobs were for carpenters for residential housing construction.
- 5 of the jobs were for apprentice carpenters
- 15 of the jobs were for Supervisors/Managers for residential housing construction.
- Many of the jobs were unrelated to carpenters and included jobs for transport industry supervisors, plumbers, bookkeepers, engineering trades, riggers, labourers, drains maintenance officers, salespersons, yard workers, draftspersons, boilermakers, gas crew leaders, poultry supervisors and latin teachers!

Jobactive website:

- There were no jobs for carpenters in the Geelong region
- There were only 27 jobs, with 34 positions, for the whole of Victoria
- Of the 27 jobs only 6 were for carpenters in the residential building sector
- 6 of the jobs were for carpenters in the non-residential commercial sector
- The majority of the ads were not for carpenters but for estimators, foremen, project managers, riggers, and senior mechanics
- 5 of the job ads appeared twice in the 27 jobs that were listed.

Underpayment of Chinese Nationals

Mr Maxwell said the following in regard to Chinese Nationals engaged on the Hobart Hospital project:

Mr Maxwell: With temporary visas, it does, especially where those people are being incorrectly paid. That has been our experience. We've had situations like in Hobart where there were a whole series of people being engaged as either plasterers or tile layers, and these people were Chinese nationals and they were being underpaid. I can provide you further details on that.

Senator HENDERSON: I actually raised this very point in relation to plasterers this morning—the integrity concerns in relation to temporary visa holders coming into the country and being exploited or not being paid correctly or other integrity issues. In the case of that Tasmanian example that you've cited, what action did the CFMMEU take?

Mr Maxwell: We took the action of ensuring that those workers had proper conditions and proper accommodation and were paid correctly.

Senator HENDERSON: Do you ask these workers to join your union when they're working on a CFMMEU site, for want of a better word?

Mr Maxwell: We ask all workers that we come across, or that our organisers come across, to join the CFMMEU. Whether they do or not is up to them.

CFMMEU Response

The underpayment of Chinese Nationals was included as a case study (Case Study 2: The Royal Hobart Hospital) in the CFMMEU Submission to the Senate Select Committee inquiry into the impact temporary migration has on the Australian economy, wages and jobs, social cohesion and workplace rights and conditions, which was attached to the CFMMEU's Submission 1 to this inquiry (see page 44).
