

---

Abortions are legal in Australia so as to assist woman who are in situations where they feel they have no other option to support a child. Australia needs to make a stand against allowing abortions simply because of gender preference. We can't consider one sex more valued than the other.. If we do so in the womb, this will only foster a culture of discrimination for the rest of society. Australia must take a stand against this sort of discrimination, and at the end of the day, a healthy society is one with equal representation from both sexes.

Christopher Blackburn