

As Principal of a small school the Naplan data presented to the wider community does not take into account all the variables of small schools . Our school has a large transient community where results differ widely depending on who has arrived or left from the school.

The teachers do a fantastic job obtaining results from the changing cohorts of students.

I am not impressed with the like school and similar schools data as I have not seen any school that has the same 75% of parents in the lowest socio levels.
