Subject: Submission to the Inquiry into the National Disability Insurance Scheme Bill 2012
Date: Thursday, 17 January 2013 10:41:09 AM

Please consider this email a formal submission by me to the Senate Standing Committee on Community Affairs Inquiry into the National Disability Insurance Scheme Bill 2012.

The current disability system has many problems that need to be addressed.

Our daughter is 29 years old and was finally diagnosed with an intellectual disability when she was eight years old. [REDACTED] has been on a disability pension and will always be. My husband and I have always done everything to ensure [REDACTED] has a wonderful life. She attended Macedon Ranges Specialist School and now attends Distinctive options at Sunbury.

We have probably been wrong but we have never asked for respite or extra help and now we find ourselves getting older and it is a worry. We used to get carers pension/allowance then the criteria changed. I work full time to support my family iam turning 60 and my husband who is 63 has just left work so we can devote more time to [REDACTED] and her needs, again we are applying for carer's pension or allowance. My wage is deemed to be too high which is a joke as I am now supporting [REDACTED] my husband and our son who suffers from depression and has been unable to work.

We get by but we are so worried about the future of our dear girl and it always falls on deaf ears, oh for a government or public officials that really care.

Please help the many many people out there like us who need help and understanding to care for these wonderful special people.

Christine Dellamarta

The main features of the NDIS that will make a difference to the community are:

More employment of people with disability and less reliance on social welfare,
More rights for people with a disability, Older parents and families will not worry what happens when they can no longer provide support

The most important services for the NDIS to provide are:

Life-skills, Support for families and carers, Crisis and emergency support

I support the introduction of the NDIS.

We subscribe to all forms of insurance and there is no greater insurance than the welfare of your own child.

I agree for my submission to be made public

Regards,

Mrs Christine Dellamarta
