

Dear Sir/Madame

I am the opposite,

I am totally in favour of bank closure. Both in Metro and Regional/Rural areas

Simply because people like myself are doing banking either on line or at Aust Post.

If people require cash they can either go to supermarkets or ATMs. All 4 major banks have none ATMs fees,

If you bank with any of the 4 major banks.

I find it ridiculous when you have duplication of services in rural towns where POs and banks are in close proximity to each other.

If people need to contact banks Well just ring them up. Banks normally operate 7 days a week via phone.

Finally I am sure if older people are struggling with digital banking. Then get a family member who are competent with digital banking.

How can banks remain viable if there is hardly any foot traffic attending banks in metro and rural areas. Staff can be redeployed within banks. And to avoid boredom.

Eventually Aust will become a cashless society.

Many Thanks
