

I have found that with the introduction of digital TV that advertising for internet gambling has been permitted, I find this offensive since with high profile sporting content, this advertising is being shown more frequently at times when young people and children could be watching the sporting event, if this content is to be advertised it should only be permitted outside times as declared for childrens time G rated shows, and like smoking all visible signboard advertising should also be prohibited.

Regards,

Bob Wylie