

ABC

Dear Sir,

My wife and I are very frequent listeners and viewers of the ABC. In recent years we have been greatly concerned by the decline in quality of ABC television programmes and by the threatened cuts (e.g. in arts programming) which point to a further decline in both radio and television. We urge that the ABC should be funded and rebuilt so that it has strong specialist units to produce high levels of high quality and genuinely local in-house programming in all program genres on radio, TV and online. Above all, we wish to see the ABC developing as a public broadcaster that is focused on diversity and quality, not ratings.

Yours sincerely,
Alex Tyrrell
