

I am an Australian that has permanent residency in Ukraine. I live there 6 months a year. My Australia daughter lives in Ukraine with my ex wife permanently. I prefer my daughter lives in Ukraine as I feel there is a better life there, in our mountainous village. Healthy air, food and good community. Her school is better than Australian schools with less bullying and sexual harassment. But I fear Russians will take control of the country and this will mean I lose all my assets, my home, my life, and my family will have to flee.

I am upset with the lack of support for Ukraine. As a taxpayer I am ashamed. We spend money on trivial matters for cheap political gain but when a good country trying to integrate into civilised European progressive values is attacked by a neighbour with very very bad policies I think it's disgusting that Australia gives such little support compared to its GDP.

This Australian parliament is on the wrong side of history. The number of Ukrainian people dead, raped is horrific. The destruction of property and infrastructure a total waste of resources. The environmental damage and loss of habitat due to land mines will cause suffering for years.

Why do Russians enjoy visas to Australia?

Why does Australia send such little aid to Ukraine.

What do I tell my daughter, an Australian citizen when she is older?
