

Dear Sir/Madam,

I am one of the applicants for General Skilled Migration (GSM) visa.

I have viewed the new announcement from the website of Parliament of Australia, which is regarding of Migration Amendment (Visa Capping) Bill 2010 [Provisions].

I am really surprised to see this new amendment. We have followed the rules and legislations of Australia since I started my high school course here, then I finished the bachelor & master degree successfully. Within those studying period, I become more aware and more understanding of this Country. After I graduated, I decided to lodge the application for General Skilled Migration Visa in the earlier of 2009.

I did fulfil the requirements of Australian Migration when I lodged the application, and I was going to live in this lovely Country for my rest of life, I started to look for the relevant job & build my family in this Country after the graduation.

1 and half years later, my life has changed a lot compared with the time that I graduated. Now I am having a really good job in a property development company and doing the accounting job, also responsible of dealing with Australian Taxation Office for tax purposes, which is related to my study courses in my bachelor & master degrees. My partner & I both have the stable income and we just bought a new car in last month. Both our parents also decide to support us to purchase the property for our personal occupying recently.

Back to the this new amendment, If it will be adopted since next financial year, the Minister for Immigration and Citizenship will be given the right to ask us to leave this Country in anytime if they think that is ok. Then our lives in here will be totally changed, according to this new amendment, we might not fully concentrate on our jobs any more, and we will worry about which day we will be banished out of this country. For economy reason, I do not think that will encourage the consumption & trading within this Country either.

After you have seen the above situation, do you still want to adopt that amendment for Migration?

I believe there will be more graduated overseas students have the same situation with me, we have already started our lives in Australia even we haven't get the permanent resident visa yet. We still have confidence that we could bring more contribution to this country. We pride of being a part of this Country.

Please! Please do not adopt this amendment! Your decision might affect the whole lives of thousands of potential talented people.

Your faithfully

One of the applicants of General Skilled Migration Visa
