University of Newcastle

Question

I note reporting that that the University of Newcastle has seen applications for semester one next year increase by more than 65 per cent compared to the same time last year (Newcastle Herald, June 28) and 14,669 students in NSW have applied to start university in 2021, an increase of 88% on this time last year (AFR, June 15). Will the Job-Ready Graduates package provide sufficient additional bachelor commonwealth-supported places to allow universities to enrol students at the same office rate as years past in 2021?

Answer

The Job-ready Graduates package includes additional places to support universities to meet additional demand so more students can go to university. Without knowing the final number of applications from students and offers made by universities, it is not possible to answer this question.

Many Universities have started their application processes earlier for non-ATAR entry to support students due to the impacts of COVID-19. This will impact the number of early applications, but might not impact the overall applications.

Please refer to IQ20-000120 for more information on additional places.

Job-ready Graduates - additional bachelor commonwealth supported places

Question

Please provide the total number of additional bachelor commonwealth supported places arising from the Job Ready Graduates package for each year 2021-2030 inclusive. Please provide a machine-readable table of the number of additional bachelor commonwealth supported places arising from the Job Ready Graduates package for each year 2021-2030 inclusive, broken down by university and the source of the place (e.g. growth funding or 'national priority' allocated places).

Answer

As there is no cap on the number of Commonwealth supported students universities may enrol, any calculation of additional student places will be notional.

The attached table estimates the number of fully funded undergraduate places that universities can provide from 2020 to 2030, if they maintain their current distribution of places across disciplines and degree types. These estimates add to the projected funding for non-designated Commonwealth Grant Scheme places (i.e. bachelor degrees) by including the amount of additional places estimated to be provided through the Job-ready Graduates package. These estimates assume that institutions do not shift enrolments between postgraduate and undergraduate courses as part of the funding envelope announced as part of the Job-ready Graduates package. Given these assumptions, it is not meaningful to break down the allocations to individual priorities.

Job-ready Graduates Methodology

Question

What was the methodology used, including assumptions, to reach the projections the Job-Ready Graduates package would “provide an additional 39,000 university places by 2023 and 100,000 places by 2030”? (Minister Tehan, 19 June)

Regarding the the “$49.7 million in targeted investments to support national priorities, including a pool of up to 900 commencing new places by 2024”:

Please provide a list of all places provided so far including the receiving university, course, number of places and total value.

a. Will private universities or non-university higher education providers be eligible for the funding and places provided by this program?

Answer

The increase in university places was calculated by looking at growth provided through ‘Targeting growth to needs’ measure (3.5 per cent growth at regional campuses, 2.5 per cent for campuses located in high-growth metropolitan areas and 1 per cent growth for campuses located in low-growth metropolitan areas).

In addition, places associated with the following measures were also included:

- funding associated with the move to CPI indexation,
- targeted investments in national priorities,
- Indigenous students from regional Australia,
- places for Regional University Centres.

Included in the $49.7 million for national priorities are for the University of Notre Dame Australia and for the Murray-Darling Medical Schools Network.

Other national priority places are yet to be allocated.

Universities (including private universities) and University Colleges will be eligible to apply for the national priority places. Other non-university higher education providers will not be eligible.

Maintenance of the new Higher Education Integrity Unit

Question

On what date did the department first become aware the Government would provide $3.9 million per year to “maintain the new Higher Education Integrity Unit within TEQSA”? (TEQSA media release, 24 June).

Answer

The department developed a proposal to establish a new Higher Education Integrity Unit within TEQSA as part of the Job-ready Graduates package.

Stakeholders consulted on the establishment of the TEQSA integrity unit

Question

Please provide a list of university and higher education stakeholders who were consulted on the establishment of the TEQSA integrity unit prior to its announcement?

Answer

The department engaged the higher education sector broadly on a range integrity-related issues including admissions transparency, academic integrity, cyber security and countering foreign interference. These consultations informed the development of the proposal for the integrity unit.

TEQSA integrity unit's enforcement and disciplinary powers

Question

On 24 June, Minister Tehan told The Australian the new integrity unit in TEQSA would be “an agency with teeth”. What are the TEQSA integrity unit's enforcement and disciplinary powers? Which of these were established or created with the 24 June announcement?

Answer

The TEQSA Act 2011 provides TEQSA with powers to take regulatory action against registered Australian higher education providers. Part 7 of the TEQSA Act outlines TEQSA's enforcement powers. No additional legislative powers were required for the Higher Education Integrity Unit.

TEQSA characterisation

Question

In evidence to the committee on 28 July, Mr English said, "I think the characterisation of the unit in TEQSA has been somewhat exaggerated in the media". What was the exaggeration Mr English was referring to?

Answer

Mr English was referring to media reports that implied that the mandate for TEQSA to investigate shifts in enrolment patterns was a new power. TEQSA has always had the capacity to examine student enrolment data when assessing higher education providers' ongoing compliance with the Higher Education Standards Framework.

Higher Education Integrity Unit

Question

1. On what date did TEQSA become aware the Minister intended to empower TEQSA to “establish a mechanism to ensure universities do not exploit humanities students”? (The Australian, June 24.)
2. On what date did TEQSA first become aware the Government would provide $3.9 million per year to “maintain the new Higher Education Integrity Unit within TEQSA”? (TEQSA media release, 24 June)
3. Was TEQSA aware prior to June 19 that the minister intended to establish the new Higher Education Integrity Unit announced on June 24?

Answer

The Tertiary Education Quality and Standards Agency (TEQSA) has provided the following response.

1. TEQSA became aware in June 2020 that the decision about the establishment of the Higher Education Integrity Unit was going to be announced.
2. In early 2020, the Department of Education, Skills and Employment notified TEQSA about the proposal to establish a Higher Education Integrity Unit within TEQSA was proceeding to decision.
3. Yes.
