Hello, I am appalled by so many items in supermarkets that are made of hard plastic. Being recyclable doesn't seem to be the solution anymore!

Reusable, refillable, no plastic at all!! How about that??

I have heard of other countries that put the onus back on the retailers whereby you can drop all your plastics and waste back at the store/supermarket. It forces the manufacturers to be more sustainable.

There needs to be extended producer responsibility where retailers and manufacturers are accountable for the waste created from the products they sell.
