

I realise that the ban on live export has been lifted and I expected this to be so as money comes before everything. I thought that it was too good to be true. If this has to be so it should be ensured absolutely that the animals don't suffer in any way. They have no voice and are completely helpless.

There should be thorough and complete monitoring of the slaughter to prevent the monsters who have no compassion torturing the animals.

Mahatma Gandhi said that the greatness of a nation and its moral progress can be judged by the way that its animals are treated. Don't let Australia be on the list of countries who are way down the list on greatness and moral progress.

Regards

Jan Myers