

I've just read about the "New Act" regarding migration bill 2010 procedures. My views are against it and I disagree to this new Bill. My reason of opposing it is we give so much dedication to something and at the end we achieve nothing. It's so unfair. Everybody should get equal opportunities to prove themselves. It's not the First come First Serve method. We people study here and work here, made so many future plans, but if we face the dark future ahead, what's the use of all this then? All our hopes, dedications, hard work and sacrifice are of no use.
