Department of Social Services

Topic: Joint Committee on Implementation of the National Redress Scheme - Written Question 4

Question reference number: SQ20-000004

Senator: Dean Smith

Type of Question: Written. Hansard Page/s:

Date set by the Committee for the return of answer: 20 February 2020

Question:

Last October, the Government announced an additional $11.7 million to support changes to the National Redress scheme – to improve operations to better support survivors. How was this money allocated? What support services (if any) received additional funding as part of this funding package? What additional funds (if any) did knowmore receive?

Answer:

Of the $11.7 million, $5.1 million was allocated to Redress Support Services and knowmore as detailed at Attachment A. The remainder was allocated to improve application processing timeframes through an increased workforce of Independent Decision Makers, streamlining the application process and reducing the number of different people a survivor may be required to deal with.

Type of Question: Written. Hansard Page/s:

Date set by the Committee for the return of answer: 20 February 2020

Question:

What is the average processing time for an application when the responsible institutions are part of the scheme? And what is the average wait time for a payment to be received by an applicant in this situation?

Answer:

The average processing time for applications received between 1 January 2019 and 30 June 2019 is approximately 8 months*.

The time taken to finalise a particular application can vary depending on a range of factors, including the number of institutions involved in an application, whether all institutions are participating in the Scheme, the volume of information provided with the application and the availability or readiness of the applicant to provide clarifying or additional information to the Scheme.

The Government provided an additional $11.7 million for the 2019-20 financial year to allow the Scheme to recruit additional Independent Decision Makers to address the current backlog of applications, improve application processing timeframes and provide additional support services to applicants.

Question reference number: SQ20-000015

Senator: Dean Smith

Type of Question: Written. Hansard Page/s:

Date set by the Committee for the return of answer: 20 February 2020

Question:

What is the oldest application received that cannot be finalised? Why is this so and what State or Territory is this in?

Answer:

The oldest application that cannot be finalised was received on 1 July 2018 from an applicant residing in the Northern Territory. This is because one or more of the named institutions in the application have not yet opted into the Scheme.

Senator: Dean Smith

Type of Question: Written. Hansard Page/s:

Date set by the Committee for the return of answer: 20 February 2020

Question:

To what extent have survivors accessed counselling and psychological services under the scheme in each state and territory?

Answer:

Under the Scheme, applicants who receive an offer of redress can also access a counselling and psychological services component. How an applicant accesses the services will depend on where they live. Applicants have the choice as to how and when they access services.

Applicants living in South Australia, Western Australia and overseas may receive a lump sum payment of up to $5,000 as part of their offer. This can be used to pay for services in the applicant's local area or for existing counsellors the applicant may be already be using. To 7 February 2020, the Scheme has paid $936,250 as part of offers of redress.

For applicants living in all other states or territories, they are connected to a free, local service as part of their offer. These services have expertise in supporting people who have experienced child sexual abuse. Applicants are able to access a minimum of 20 hours of counselling over their lifetime. To 7 February 2020, the Scheme has made 536 referrals to these services.

Question reference number: SQ20-000019

Senator: Dean Smith

Type of Question: Written. Hansard Page/s:

Date set by the Committee for the return of answer: 20 February 2020

Question:

To what extent, if any, have prisoners accessed the scheme in each state and territory? How many former prisoners with a sentence of more than 5 years have applied to the scheme and how many of them have received a payment in each state and territory?

Answer:

The National Redress Scheme has a special application process for people who seek to make an application from gaol. For the Scheme to accept an application made from gaol there must be exceptional circumstances and a determination made by the Scheme Operator before the application is accepted.

As at 7 February 2020, less than 10 determinations of exceptional circumstances have been made from 35 applicants who are in gaol across the country.

In addition, 159 people have applied to the Scheme who have had a single criminal sentence of 5 years or more but are no longer in prison. Fifty-six of these matters have been finalised.

Number of applicants that have sought exceptional circumstances from gaol	Number of applicants who have applied with a serious criminal conviction of five years or more
35	159

We cannot provide a state-by-state breakdown because of low numbers in some jurisdictions, given the requirement to protect the confidentiality and privacy of applicants.

Date set by the Committee for the return of answer: 20 February 2020

Question:

How many applicants have received a direct personal response under the scheme – by state and territory?

Answer:

Under the Scheme, participating institutions provide annual data about completed direct personal responses at the end of each financial year. Applicants make the first contact with an institution to arrange a direct personal response, and have until the end date of the Scheme to do so.

As at 30 June 2019, institutions reported eight (8) completed direct personal responses.

Data on the applicants' location is not collected. However, the institutions that reported data for the period were located or had a presence in Victoria, Tasmania, Queensland and the Australian Capital Territory.

Type of Question: Written. Hansard Page/s:

Date set by the Committee for the return of answer: 20 February 2020

Question:

How many people have died between submitting an application and the application being decided/paid out?

Answer:

The Scheme is aware of some applications where the applicant has died before their application has been finalised. The death of an applicant will not necessarily stop an application from progressing. If someone dies after making a complete application, and they are made an offer of redress, their estate will receive the redress payment.

As at 7 February 2020, 23 applicants who have died have had their application decided and their payment has been made to their estate.

Senator: Dean Smith

Type of Question: Written. Hansard Page/s:

Date set by the Committee for the return of answer: 20 February 2020

Question:

How long are institutions or organisations taking to pay, once a decision has been made and the offer accepted by the applicant? Are there any issues with delays or refusals?

Answer:

Once a determination has been made, and the offer is accepted by the applicant, their payment is processed by the National Scheme within around seven business days.

Liable institutions are invoiced quarterly in arrears by the Scheme and have thirty days to pay a correctly rendered invoice. Under the National Redress Scheme for Institutional Child Sexual Abuse Act 2018 late payment penalties apply to unpaid invoices. As at 7 February 2020 no penalties have been applied.

Question:

Are the actions promised in the Government's response to the royal commission all on track? Are there any which are proving difficult to progress or get agreement with states/territories on? Which ones?

Answer:

The Government Response to the 84 redress related recommendations from the Redress and Civil Litigation Report of the Royal Commission into Institutional Responses to Child Sexual Abuse (the Royal Commission) was that 'the Australian Government is establishing the National Redress Scheme in response to the Royal Commission's recommendations regarding Redress'.

The National Redress Scheme for Institutional Child Sexual Abuse (the National Redress Scheme) commenced on 1 July 2018 and will continue for 10 years.

In December 2019, the Attorney-General's Department tabled an annual progress report on the implementation of all recommendations from the Final Report of the Royal Commission – please see report at <https://www.childabuseroyalcommissionresponse.gov.au/annual-progress-reporting/australian-government-reports/2019-annual-progress-report>.

Topic: Joint Committee on Implementation of the National Redress Scheme - Written Question 28

Question reference number: SQ20-000028

Senator: Dean Smith

Type of Question: Written. Hansard Page/s:

Date set by the Committee for the return of answer: 20 February 2020

Question:

Is the department reviewing the proportion of applications from each state and territory in light of the number of anticipated applications from each state and territory. For example it appears that the numbers from WA are below expectations? If so, what has the department found?

Answer:

There are a range of factors that influence when applicants may choose to lodge an application with the Scheme. Applicants can lodge an application up to 30 June 2027.

One factor is whether a particular institution is participating in the Scheme. While the Scheme commenced operations on 1 July 2018 not all states and territories and only a small number of non-government institutions were participating from that date.

States and territories progressively joined the Scheme during the first eight months of operation (for example, Western Australia became a participating institution on 1 January 2019, meaning applications for government institutions in that state could not be processed before this date).

Non-government institutions continue to become participants in the Scheme leading up to the 30 June 2020 deadline.

Given these factors, the department has not conducted a review of the proportion of applications currently received from each state/territory compared to anticipated numbers, but may do so in future.

Date set by the Committee for the return of answer: 20 February 2020

Question:

Has the department had feedback from First Nations peoples about their access to the process? If so, please outline that feedback?

Answer:

Yes. The department receives feedback from individuals, through service providers and has held forums with stakeholders to help inform the delivery to and access of the Scheme by First Nations peoples. This feedback is helping the department to improve the operation of the Scheme.

Key issues raised in the feedback include:

- Opportunities for improved cultural awareness of how the Scheme operates (not only in its engagement with applicants but also in the development of its policies and practices).
- Increasing the numbers of First Nations people employed or engaged through the Scheme
- Working with trusted community based intermediaries to increase awareness of the Scheme by First Nations people living in regional and remote areas and remove barriers for First Nations people living in remote areas accessing free support.
- Improving Scheme communications for First Nations people.
- Improving access to financial counselling, delivered by organisations not affiliated with those named in the Royal Commission where child sexual abuse was known to occur, to assist First Nations people manage their redress payments.

Type of Question: Written. Hansard Page/s:

Date set by the Committee for the return of answer: 20 February 2020

Question:

How many applicants have there been where the institution no longer exists? Please outline what has happened to those applications.

Answer:

There are currently 128 applications where the institution is considered defunct. These applications continue to be on hold while the Department of Social Services (the department) works to find an existing organisation to take responsibility for them. If an existing organisation is unable to be identified the department considers whether or not the Scheme's funder of last resort provisions are appropriate.
