

I am not happy with ABC's decision to outsource the production of programs like Bananas in pyjamas and many other programs, That will no doubt get rid of existing staff but will also compromise the quality of the content which australia people are use to see on "their" ABC. We never expected anything like that from the ABC as it was seen as people's ABC and not a commercial organisation which is more inclined on making profits rather than seve the interests and likes of ordinary people. These decisions are made by the so called top level managers who are just interested in justifying their sky rocketing salaries and achieving their targets rather than anything else.
