

To this bill, I want to express my own opinion.

Due to the economical situation in Australia, the government has changed some immigration policies, which seriously impact the students who are studying in Australia, the person who are waiting the PR approval and even the Australian residents. The government said the Australia did not need so much labors now, reducing the number of immigrates would help to increase the unemployment rate. I say it is not true, immigrates help economical recovery rather than hinder it.

1. After the immigration policy changed, the number of overseas students dropped around 30% in some areas. It influences the unemployment rate.
2. Overseas students are the most impacted. They spend lots of money studying courses which the government said it would help Australia. Immigrates are trying to be the part of the community. Now suddenly they are thrown away.
3. The Australian take care the refugee and boat person. The newspapers gave them headlines. What about these people, who already have stayed a couple of years in Australia? I just read the articles occasionally at the corner of the third or forth page in the newspaper.
4. If the Migration Amendment (Visa Capping) Bill 2010 be passed, it would have significant influence to the immigration framework, for the bill would give too much power to the Immigration Department. It may be let the department make the decision too quickly and easily. Do not have enough inside and outside survey and inquiry.
