

My name is Jeffrey Gill. I am 68 years old and live in rural Victoria.

As an Australian citizen, tax payer and voter I wish to register my support for the draft Human Rights and Anti Discrimination Bill currently before the Senate which I have read and wholeheartedly endorse.

Passage of this Bill and the implementation of its content will enable Australia to hold its head high as a modern progressive nation that protects all of its citizens from unfair treatment and discrimination at the hands of all other citizens – particularly discrimination by people who blindly hold to views that have been handed down for generations by out-dated and discredited agencies and do not have the ability to question the relevance of those views in a modern society.

Many Thanks

Jeffrey Gill
