I believe that couples should be choosing to have children because they wish to have a child, not specifically a boy child or a girl child. It certainly isn't the unborn child's fault that it is a girl or boy and as such should be protected in accordance with the UN Convention of the Rights of the Child. Given this, it is morally wrong to abort a baby/fetus on the basis of its gender. If it is too devastating for a parent to have 'another boy' or 'another girl', the question has to be asked 'are they really fit to be a parent at all?' To compound this further and enable parents to get an abortion that is funded by Medicare is wrong! As a tax payer, I resent that my money is utilised for this purpose rather than creating a better country for us all to live in.
