

Dear Sir/Madam,

I am a newly graduated overseas student who already lodged the application of becoming PR six months ago. I am writing with regard to the changes of Visa Capping Bill 2010.

The truth is I do not know how to start this letter. What comes to my mind now is the day when I first came to Coffs Harbour five years ago. It is the small harbour city where I spent more than two years to finish my bachelor degree. I still can remember that day when the plane landed on Coffs airport; I was so exciting to see my nice homestay Helen and her son. The two years there gave me plenty of time to make friends, to get to know Australia. When I graduated I choose to continue my master degree in Australia, because I love the way of studying and living here. Since then I decided to settle down in Australia. I try my best to realise my dream here, I cherish the golden youth time I spent here.

I have no idea what I am going to do if my application is not accepted. What should I do with my kitty and the 30 stray cats I feed every night? What should I do with my house and car? What should I do with my business? What should I do with my social life here? What should I do with my lover here?

I really do not know what I am going to do to handle the situation like that. When I am refused and back to my motherland, maybe I am 29 years old or 31 years old. What I can do to build my new social life, it is a tough life I will encounter. I am not younger anymore, so I do not have time to try every thing new without fear or thinking. At that time, I have to get married to build my own family, to have a well-paid job to feed my kids, to live a life without turbulence.

I can understand why the immigration wants to change the Visa Capping Bill. In order to maintain societal cohesion it is essential to control the number of immigrants. But the mixture of different cultures and traditions also gives Australia colour and vibrancy.

Immigration is not a business that with the pursuit of profit, trader might run business without faith and trust, immigration is the face of a country, she made the promise, we trust the her so we are do our best to be on the track to get what we are deserve to.

Regards,
