Senator Fierravanti asked:

What happens if an LHN runs out of funding?

Answer:

- The governing councils of LHNs will have an obligation to manage within funds available to them.
- States will be responsible for negotiating LHN Service Agreements.
- LHNs will have strong financial management skills on the governing councils.
- States and territories may agree with LHNs to renegotiate or amend LHN Service Agreements, should circumstances arise where that is appropriate.
- States and territories will notify the Commonwealth and the Funding Authorities, quarterly or as otherwise agreed, of any adjustments to the LHN Service Agreement agreed with the LHN that will affect the level of upcoming payments funded by the Commonwealth.
- LHNs will receive funds from both the Commonwealth (through the National Health and Hospitals Network Fund) and State governments, and will directly pay Local Hospital Networks on an activity basis for public hospital services. This will deliver complete transparency about what funding is provided to public hospitals, and the services they deliver to the community.

- States will be responsible for state-wide public hospital industrial relations functions; including negotiation of enterprise bargaining agreements and establishment of remuneration and employment terms and conditions to be adopted by LHNs.

Senator Fierravanti-Wells asked:

Will the independent pricing authority be truly independent when the IGA (and presumably the enabling legislation) states that there will be reserve powers for the Commonwealth to over-ride their determinations?

Answer:

The Independent Hospital Pricing Authority will be established as an independent Commonwealth statutory authority, under the Financial Management and Accountabilities Act 1997.

The National Health and Hospitals Network Agreement states that the Commonwealth Health Minister and Treasurer will have reserve powers that will only be used in exceptional circumstances. The Commonwealth Health Minister and Treasurer would only exercise the reserve power when the Prime Minister and the First Ministers of 4 States and Territories, including at least 3 States, have agreed, prior to exercise of their reserve power and tabling any direction or decision in the Commonwealth Parliament.

Written Question on Notice

Senator Fierravanti-Wells asked:

Questions in relation to the Commonwealth's diabetes measure:

- a) The Government's diabetes management program initially specified that patients would need to enrol with practices, but the COAG communiqué now specifically states that patients will enrol with their GP. Which one is correct?
- b) You have talked about patients voluntarily enrolling in these arrangements, but how many doctors do you anticipate will participate?
- c) Why just diabetes and which other chronic diseases is the Commonwealth planning to extend this model of care to?
- d) Is the amount paid to the general practice supposed to cover all the medical care that the enrolled patient gets (not just care related to diabetes)?
- e) What happens if the funding for the patient's treatment (medical or other services) runs out? Will there be access to additional funding?

Answer:

- a) Under the Coordinated Care for Patients with Diabetes program, patients with diabetes will be able to voluntarily enrol with their usual general practice. The general practice will be responsible for the enrolled patients ongoing primary health care, including management of their diabetes.
- b) It is expected that over 4,300 accredited general practices covering around 60% of all general practices are expected to sign-on to the Coordinated Care for Patients with Diabetes program in its first year of operation (2012-13).
- c) The Coordinated Care for Patients with Diabetes program introduces a new way of funding the flexible delivery of primary health care services through general practice for the treatment and ongoing management of people with chronic disease, starting with diabetes. This program will be evaluated after its implementation and it will be determined whether the flexible funding model should be extended to include other chronic diseases.

- d) The general practice will receive package of care funding which can be used flexibly. This will take into account the range of care needs across patients with both high, more complex needs and those with lower care needs.

General practices can use the flexible funding to provide primary care services for patients with diabetes enrolled with the practice. This includes personalised care plans and reviews, care coordination, ongoing GP primary health care and nursing services. High needs patients will also be able to receive care coordination services to assist them to manage the complex arrangements for their care.

- e) The detailed design of the program is not yet finalised. Implementation of the program will involve substantial stakeholder consultation, as well as design and development of a number of the key elements of the program including patient enrolment, new service and funding arrangements and a performance framework.
