

I think Visa capping is not fair to all the applicators who lodged in the application already. They have their rights to apply the visa according to their needs. And they should get the original conditions and terms when they lodged in, not capping them if the government wants.

From the beginning, Australian government set up the policies and benefits to attract all the students or people from the world studying here and work here, and guarantee them they could get the PR once they finish the course or other objects. But now, the government has totally forgotten what they promise and already get what they want. Trying to cap the lawfully applications through the lawmaking. Why? Are the students doing something wrong? Are the other people not working hard? No! The answer is no! They contributed their sweat to this country. They contributed their harvest to this country. Now the minister wants the power to ask them leave quickly? It is not our country's spirit. And not they applicators' want.

They love this country just like you; they contribute their youth just like you. They do not want to leave, they want to stay here to be one of the peace.

Previously, once they lodged in the applications that means they are not affect by the change of the policies. While this bill break this peace and serenity, making they living in threat and disappoint every single day.

I think it is not their fault. They spend sum of money to study in this country, work in this county. They are right, because the agents and the government express the migration policy to them. And that's way they are willing to loan from the others or mortgage their houses, land to move to this advocating freedom country. Should we doubt, is it the message delay to express them? But they are innocent. They do not know they policy is changing every day while the agent and government not tell them but ask them unnecessary to fear, Nothing serious. As the result, they were fooled by the agent; they were fooled by the government.

I hope my views could be express to the officer through this submission.

Again, thank you for spending your time to reading this submission. Wish you all have a nice day.
