I write in support of wind energy.

My reading of the evidence indicates strongly that wind energy is very low-impact in terms of health and environmental consequences. On the other hand, the consequences of failing to embrace zero-emission energy sources are likely to be catastrophic because of climate tipping points will soon be passed.

For the sake of a globally responsible approach to climate change, please support a strong wind energy industry. Do not let local vested interests get in the way of effective and necessary action in response to the threat of climate change.
