

I have sent many emails in support of banning live export to overseas countries

I will continue to support the MP's who share my views and disregard those who support live trade

The farmers will not do as they say and monitor what happens once the animals leave our shore. If they were to do so, what we saw on four corners would never have happened. The farmers are only interested in money, the nature of how these animals are treated once they reach their destination, obviously they don't care otherwise it wouldn't have gone on for this long.

Live export should cease and the animals should be killed in Australia and sent over frozen.

Yours sincerely

Kim Collins
Western Australia