

To whom it may concern

I have heard there is a proposal to have a 10C refund put on recycleable drink bottles, I think this is a fantastic idea and it might just make those lazy people think twice before throwing their bottles in the bin/out the car window/leaving them in the bush etc...

Please seriously consider, as in general people are lazy and will waste our resources unless there is something that may benefit them directly!

Thanks for your time
