

The new restrictions have seen gas mining companies finding it all too hard. Which just goes to prove that they were not looking after the interests of the environment before.

Australians do not want their environment compromised for the sake of a dollar.

Kind regards

Caroline McDougall