Dear Standing Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs,

I am concerned that the proposed Privacy Amendments do not protect my right to privacy as an Australian citizen.

Any organisation that wishes to gather data on me should be required to inform me that my information is being added to a database.

If they wish to sell information about me, they must be required to seek my permission in writing, and must compensate me in some way.

Please ensure that your legislation does not violate my right to privacy.

Yours sincerely,

Eric Manners
