While i think its fine to enforce copyright, to ban importing as proposed by the new law would be unfair, many dvds are not released to austrlaia and it will be unfair to limit people to australia's limited & overpriced release's , so please reconsider and leave the law as it is currently as i import from a legit dvd site, www.dvdpacific.com so it would be unfair to ban legit dvd importing

while importing on dvd's would not be illegal directly, unless i'm mistaken the provision will make it illegal to own a multi-region dvd player, which i currently own and is a common thing in australia (A majority now days are not only limited to region 4), so basicly you will be making something illegal that a large percentage of australia own, and thus you will be in turn making it illegal to import since you would no longer be able to watch them on a multiregion dvd player
