

SUBMISSION AGAINST DIVISIVE MULTICULTURALISM

Multiculturalism is by nature divisive, rather than unifying.

In the past 200 years Australian culture has been unifying, whilst very appreciative of the quaintness of other cultures.

We have such a wonderful Australia and it is multiculturalism that is spoiling the good that we have had.

I used to enjoy asking people from what country they come. I now realise that this is because I presupposed that they had Australianised themselves and it was a personal little challenge to see if I could pick the source.

Now I don't want to ask anyone what country they came from in case they think that I am giving them tacit permission to stay in that mode. No, I want them to do the hard yards of becoming Australian, like I have done for the past 22 years, and then I will enjoy their cultural nuances and accents.

Not all cultures are equal because not all religions are equal. The biblical culture of Australia promotes unity and equality. Eastern religions promote a caste system which is not Australian and should not be encouraged. Islam refuses to coexist and only wants to dominate, as soon as it can gain the upper hand. This is seen in Europe already, and is taught by imams around the world. "Islam" means "submission," so it is "their way or the highway."

Our recommendation is to teach all immigrants the Christian Bible, by teachers who know and love the Bible, as an aid for them to understand how true Aussies think and feel about mutual respect, looking out for each others best, helping each other up, fostering unity whilst knowing that each individual is unique with and without their cultural background. All these "one another" verses are taught in Christian churches and are summed up in the culture of "love one another."
