Dear JSCEM,

I have fallen off the electoral role for some years now as I have been living outside Australia for more than 10 years. I remain an Australian citizen and my son is also (and our baby due in March will also be). I retain a strong interest in the Australian political scene by virtue of my personal and professional interests (e.g.: I work in the area of government and policy but from within the private sector) and I am also a graduate in Political Science from the Australian National University.

I would welcome the opportunity to be put back onto the electoral role and encourage the JSCEM to consider the three year rule as part of its deliberations.

Yours sincerely,

Richard
