I wish to place on record my support for the manner in which referendums are NOW conducted. I am of the opinion that where anything is proposed by anybody to change our Constitution, we, the voters, are entitled to receive information in writing prepared by the proponents of the change and the contrary view prepared by the opponents. To have these arguments prepared by an independent person or persons, would not, in my opinion, give a reasonable view of either case. Only the people can change the Constitution and they should be guided either way by the persons they elect to govern the country on their behalf.

Thank you.
