

For heavens sake stop messing around with enquiries etc and get on with not only opening up more mines but actually building our own reactors and developing clean pollution free electricity generation. The rest of the world is planning and building reactors as fast as they can while Aus' as usual is years behind the latest developments. The technology is freely available, we've got huge amounts of the stuff and we are still dithering about what to do.

Barry Morgan

No. 68