Hi,

I am sending this in support of shared custody support as I am a father who currently has shared custody until our next Court hearing. I am going for sole custody because I love my kids and are concerned for their welfare. My wife and I separated some six months ago due to a long battle with her illnesses she was diagnosed with (Depression & Ocd).

Don't really know where this message will get me but I feel a bit lost and want as much support for my case as possible as I am the one who has both financially and physically supported my wife and kids which she has agreed with in the past and know she has turned against me and is trying to skin me. If you have any tips please forward on.

Thanks
