

SUBMISSION No. 139

To the cyber bullying committee,

I am a 14 year old student that has a rather good view on the topic of cyber bullying. I personally have experienced cyber bullying first hand with some friends being bullied to the point of self harm, obviously my view on cyber bullying is that it is not the right thing and does not need to happen. There have been many reported cases of cyber bullying on the news, most of these are only going on the news to spread a message that tells the world that there is no need for it. The Police force has assigned a few officers to go around to schools and give a lecture on what is secure and sensible surfing and appropriate blogging on the internet. I am aware that there is a zero tolerance when it comes to cyber bullying but a lot of cyber bullying is going undetected. I think that there needs to be more police task force members on the internet constantly so that inexperienced users can be safe from the things they don't want to be exposed to.

--

Yours Sincerely
Jayme