Inquiry	Oversight of ASIC, the Takeovers Panel and the Corporations Legislation No.1 of the 46th Parliament
Question No.	009
Topic	Nuix contract
Reference	Spoken, 5 December 2022, Hansard pages 52 and 53
Committee member	Senator Deborah O'Neill

Question

CHAIR: And how long does that commit you to be in a relationship with Nuix for?

Mr Day: I think it's for three years.

CHAIR: So from 2022 to 2025.

Mr Day: I'll take that on notice, but it's two or three years while we explore broader options, in terms of other providers et cetera, as well as Nuix bidding for those services as well.

Answer

The current ASIC contract with Nuix is for subscription licences for Nuix Workstation software and for support and maintenance of our Nuix Discover licences.

The period of the contract is 2 years, with a single one-year option to extend.

The commencement date of the contract was 29 April 2022. The initial term of the work order is to expire on 28 April 2024.

ASIC may in its sole discretion extend the term of this work order for 12 months (i.e., until 28 April 2025).
