Topic: Compliance Committee for Sydney Airport – advice from the Attorney-General

Senator Matthew Canavan asked:

Senator CANAVAN: Section 66(1) of the Sydney Airport Demand Management Act 1997 says, 'There is to be a Compliance Committee for Sydney Airport.'

Ms Werner: Yes.

Senator CANAVAN: But there isn't one, and there hasn't been one for nearly four years. How is the government in compliance with this act of parliament?

Ms Werner: The facts that you state are correct.

Senator MCKENZIE: The question remains.

Senator CANAVAN: Has the department asked for any advice from the Attorney-General on this section of the act in the continuing absence of a compliance committee?

Ms Werner: I don't think we've asked that specific question.

Senator CANAVAN: Maybe if you could take that on notice.

Answer:

The last appointments to the Slot Compliance Committee expired in 2020. The Department of Infrastructure, Transport, Regional Development, Communications and the Arts has not located any record indicating the department sought advice from the Attorney-General on the expiry of these appointments.
