

The governments are actively preventing work being created.

The government is putting folk out of work by its own rules and actions and legislations.

The lack of ability to solve instance cost is costing jobs.

Fix the basics first before you hassle the unemployed.

Example 38 year of booklaying experience but is considered unqualified to teach booklaying

A person with over 30 year experience in something is unqualified then who or earth is.

Materialism is not Capitalism

To the committee

Certain contemporary things need to be acknowledged before any true progress is made in alleviating the 12-15% of people who may never find work with the present philosophy surrounding how we manage our fiscal arrangements within the nation of Commonwealth.

There is not in fact any unemployment, there is only a surplus to the requirement of the private sector human resource. Collectively you the committee must come to terms with this verifiable fact, not to do so means the truth of the situation is denied, hence with no true solution.

Regardless of how low you get wages to go there will only be so many jobs to go round, to deny this is in fact an abdication of government's responsibility to the future generations. You will be held accountable.

For a great many older people especially males even though they may be the highest skilled people in the land, the contemporary era of only the 'credited' will be employed means regardless of any individual's personal experience they will never be considered suitable for employment over younger naive inexperienced uni graduates. There is nothing really that will be done to change this as it is a contemporary fashion.

It is the denial by this particular government and its alliance with the speculative predatory capitalist agendas that will ensure regardless of how much it tries to put psychological pressure on disadvantaged individuals there still will not be enough work and in fact the economic outlook ensures that there will not be any growth in employment over all especially within those who are disenfranchised by the modern work practices and the limitations of our contemporary philosophy regarding how we exist in harmony with this continent. coming to terms with this notion will help change generically how our social welfare paradigm evolves into a more suitable and equitable situation.

An alternative solution free of agendas. free of politics free of denial free of the mean spiritedness we now witness from certain ministers.

It has taken two and a bit decades to reach our present situation regarding employment.

It is my argument that any wise and intelligent government with a genuine humane agenda will accept that it may then take two decades to change this decay of hope. we are into the third generation of discontent and are seeing a crumbling pyramid of expectations and this government specifically set in motion the economic traps to ensure that this trend will continue until there is an end to the denial that envelops our present political parties then no progress will be made.

We need to set in motion a system of enablement that creates generically a change in the social welfare economic equation and be patient and learn from what we observe.

Putting pure number crunching on every economic consideration is a sign of the lack of insight or wisdom.

and actual experiential evidence of those making such harsh decisions about other equal individuals lives.

Those in government must see people as equal to themselves first. They must understand also exactly where our society is before trying to impose draconian ideas that are in fact coming from a 17th century set of values. Read the History of the Great ~~Free~~ Seaman.

There is in fact an amazing potential of possibilities for creating local enterprise and industry in many areas around Australia, but a shift in fact a quantum shift in thinking will be required by both the state Labour parties and federal government will be needed before we will have any hope of being both creative and impartial in our judgement to the issues surrounding employment.

Each region needs to be identified as an economically autonomous zone and the potentials of that area capitalised on this is the very basis of capitalism.

We then need to introduce a philosophy of Universal Capitalism to encourage people to volunteer to participate in creating the enterprises that will enable them materially in the future.

And there needs to be the acceptance that

(one) not everyone is as greedy as everyone else.
(two) That because of the price of property people are being given NO incentive to work any more than they need to survive. Costello is to blame for this not the unemployed.

That said enterprises can be created that would eventually help augment practically positively and materially the cost of our social welfare arrangements.

In fact one can argue that the system I have described will in the end generically help restore certain facets of our society that are now costing us millions in health costs and the costs of mental illness. It is a symbiotic attitude to welfare and society.

If we maintain in our own hands water electricity and phone we can actually use them as the foundation of our future welfare arrangements and incentives in a modern economy based upon Universal Capitalism. Capitalism that allows even the most disadvantaged to capitalise on their own potential.

Universal Capitalism is the future of welfare and Capitalism in general.

It is my request that the government allow an experiment to take place around The Baker Hill area to create a PERMANENT ASSET and BENEFITS SCHEME.

I am not prepared to give away all my intellectual property for free seeing as the government is branding us as greedy and wishy washy. I have worked 12 years on this and the leading thinker in this country on unemployment and how to solve it.

The government could give me a job helping develop the employment of the future.
In fact the governments are putting obstacles up to stop some of us working how insulting is it all

Kind Regards

Cooperacy and Universal Capitalism

are 21st Century ideas, evolving.

They are the solutions to the intergenerational problems.

Debate me on these things
if you dare, who should be the minister for social security? one who makes everyone feel insecure or one that give security through hope, guidance and love.
