As a user of the internet at work and at home, for business and social purposes, I would like to comment that we need our internet connection to be as fast, secure and cheap as possible, as it links people, facilitates business, is a great source of knowledge and information. I use broadband internet currently to

- pay bills online,
- to phone overseas friends and family (skype),
- to email quickly and cheaply, to a range of family and friends,
- to make social arrangements, issue invitations,
- to find out when and where community events are happening,
- to keep up with my kids without having to make intrusive phone calls at their workplaces.
- to buy good and services
- to check policy and procedures on government and other websites
- to check TV and radio and football information
- to clarify information
- to watch TV when I missed a program
- to enter competitions
- and probably so many other things I've forgotten to mention!

Cheers,

Kris
