Dear Sir,

In reply to article in Mosman Courier dealing with ageing population.

1. Legalise voluntary euthanasia.

There must be billions of dollars spent annually on resources, drugs etc. keeping people with no quality of life alive against their wishes! These resources and drugs would be better spent on improving hospitals and caring for the younger generation.

The world is already over-populated. Let us die quietly when our usefulness is complete, and spare the suffering to the patient as well as those left behind who cared about us.

2. Make better provision for dental care.

Food must be properly chewed for good digestion. Good dental care is becoming beyond the means of many pensioners and elderly self funded retirees. Poor digestion leads to further health problems.

Sincerely,
Dany Rey.
