Dear Kelvin

Re: Climate Change

Climate change is a serious issue and to make a significant impact we need to set the emissions reduction targets against 1990 levels to 30% , Anything less may become an insignificant attempt at solving such an important issue.

To ensure that the emissions trading scheme commencing by 2010 is effective, we should see no exemptions handed out, especially to fossil-fuel industries. Alternative technologies to fossil-fuel power generation need to be developed. Investment s should therefore be seen to be aiding these developments.

Yours sincerely
