Dear Committee members,

The review of free parking around Canberra's national attraction needs to note that the term 'free parking' is not correct.

Australian taxation means that Australians have already ~~paid~~ ^{pay} for the privilege of parking so that they may visit these sites which are being provided ⁷ by money gained from Australians (paying their taxes).

To force people to pay to ^{park in} visit is similar to asking for a person to pay parking fees when parked in their own driveway.

The Australian people pay for government buildings and while this country continues to remain a democracy we should not be required to pay to visit them a or park around them.

If paid parking is introduced
I want a considerable reduction in my taxation.

Yours sincerely

M. Moran
