PAY PARKING IN THE [PARLIAMENTARY ZONE

The Friends of the National Library has in its earlier submission drawn attention to the desirability of making some special provision for persons whose use of the Library requires long-term parking. Some will be researchers who spend many hours in the Library. Others will be volunteers who give many hours of their own time to work on projects for the Library itself.

If an area were set aside for this purpose, the Committee may be interested to know that all of the Library users referred to above have electronically readable cards for requesting library materials and paying for photocopying. It would presumably be possible for the cards to be used to operate a boom gate or some other barrier.
