Date: Sunday, 6 November 2011 5:50:36 AM

Myself and my husband write to implore the committee to alter the telecommunications bill in order that the profit and greed motives of national companies do not overrule the community.

We in the EcoVillage at Currumbin narrowly missed out on having a gigantic mobile tower erected under 500metres away.

Had there been a telecommunications bill where Telstra would have been required to inform and consult us this sort of affront would not have occurred.

We ask that Telstra be made responsible for informing the communities when it applies for permission to erect a tower.

Yours,
