Subject: Australias Relationship with the UN

Roger Noble cc: ~~Grant Harrison~~

Dear Sirs,

I thank you for your letter of June 13, 2002 in which you point out the importance of the UN in Australia's interests.

Like many people in the streets, I honestly cannot see any advantage at all in belonging to the UN in any situation, since they are never where they are needed, and they never seem to be able to go against the main offenders of the World, particularly if they happen to be Muslim.

We are told time and time again by Australian Parliament that "we do not have to abide by UN decisions", but in just about every instance, Australia bows to the Rules as set down by the UN.

Billions of dollars a year are poured into this travelling cocktail party called the UN (name given to them by various media who also think they are useless), at a time when this money could build hospitals and other badly needed facilities here in Australia. Charity DOES begin at home!

If the UN was to be as efficient as they propose to be, then why are they not putting Idi Amin into the International Court?

Why is not the UN doing something about the slaughter of Christians in Indonesia by the Muslims?

Why is not the UN doing something about the purge of white farmers in former Rhodesia?

If ever Indonesia did invade Australia, do you believe for one moment that they would help us here in Australia? I think not.

I believe that we should distance ourselves from the UN and remain a sovereign Country, free of interference from people who do not live here, nor share our values.

Many regards,

Leonce Kealy
