92	BER wasn't spent on library. A class is housed in the library for the duration of the construction period which has meant the collection has been moved into a smaller space, all computers have been removed, as have desks and chairs and the library "teaching" space is less than 6 by 7 m of floor (full RFF timetable which occupies all but 1 hour per week. 106	The library has housed 2 classes for the last 6 months due to BER classrooms being built as well. There has been very little use of the library by the students during this time. I personally don't think our BER library will be large enough to house our collection without it being cramped. On paper it looks very spacious but I don't think TL's were consulted about what they really need. I am getting new items that I do not want (and have already removed exactly tha same from my existing library) and would have preferred other items in their place. We weren't given the option of a refurb and I personally think that would have been better.	Mar 22, 2010 5:18 AM
107	Not sure how much funding to library. We have NO say in how it is happening or the eventual outcome. Input despite being asked for initially from the library staff was ignored by the architects	Mar 22, 2010 5:19 AM

134	Our school opted to use the refurbishment grant to renovate the old multi-purpose room into a library. The library then moved from a tiny room in a portable into a slightly larger space. We now have new facilities, a IWB and room to seat a whole class on the floor. We can work on cyber-safety, information literacy, ict skills etc as a whole class in the library. The space is bright, clean and new and many more children are visiting at lunch and break and after school to read and borrow books. They constantly remark on how much they love the new library. 141	Extraordinarily! TL off-line for most of Term 4 2009 (although borrowing could continue for about 6 weeks of the term) and Term 1 2010 to attend BER meetings, liaise with builders, sub-contractors, site managers, project managers, suppliers, staff, students and parents. As well, with parent support (and after having done risk assessments), we had to pack up the library (into over 600 boxes), move everything into another building so that the old library could be used for another purpose. Then we had to move everything into the new library and store it there until the new furniture arrived (and it's still coming!). Fortunately, I had asked classroom teachers to let me know what they thought they'd need for the first few weeks at the beginning of the school year, and we packed those resources into carefully marked boxes and stored them where they could be found in January. Now that most of the furniture is in place and the shelves have been re-stocked, it seems that all the new carpet tiles (which are lifting) will have to be taken up and reglued, so here we go again. The ordering process has been a nightmare. Our Business Services Manager won't have anything to do with the P21 aspect of BER because she isn't placing orders. So I've had to obtain all the quotes, send them to the project manager who then places the order with Education Queensland Facilities people. There have been many, many mistakes, cases of companies not being paid for up to 3 months, wrong furniture being delivered (and not sorted out yet). As well, the accounts kept by us, our program manager and Education Queensland people aren't matching. I was told 'there is $9 000 left for furniture, fittings and equipment, but don't send any more orders because it might be only $7 500'. Now it seems that there's just over $2 500 left ... and could I please work out what the real answer is!!!!!! (I'm working on it.) Since May last year, I've been getting very little sleep, and working long hours and weekends. I know this is a job creation project, but it has been a 'work creation' project for me. Having said all that, our new building is fantastic and this time next year I'll have forgotten all the angst. And honestly, I'm fortunate that I've been heavily involved (and I asked to be), unlike some of my colleagues who have had nothing to do with the project. One said, "My principal is doing everything. I don't know what it (the library) is going to be like - I'll see it when it's finished."	Mar 22, 2010 7:19 AM

204	BER funding has been divided between a number of classrooms and I am not privy to the exact amount spent on the library. The library was to have been finished being refurbished by first term, 2010, week 2 - it is still not close to being done. 98% of stock remains packed in boxes and borrowing is severely restricted. It is difficult for teachers as well as myself to teach without resources on hand. The refurbishment has been designed by someone who did not consult with me as to the size of our school collection - I have been allotted 13 bays of shelves (we have 8000+ books) seating for 24 students (as a small school our class numbers can fluctuate wildly and have been know to go up to 31 in a 5/6 class. 8 massive computer tables has been assigned to the library taking up a huge amount of floor space. There has been no floor space left vacant for reading groups. On a positive note they will supply me with 3 new return boxes (not that I need that many). The designers should have had a short meeting with the librarian to discuss individual school needs, not just go with outside dimensions and do what they think is appropriate.	Mar 22, 2010 7:19 PM

211	1 million dollars was taken from the library allocation (as advertised on the Federal government website) to build an auditorium, a decision made by one person, contrary to the guidelines of the BER programme, and against the wishes of the entire school staff. In consequence, our student population of 1287 has been offered an extension to the current 4 bay library. Our furniture allocation was cut to 30,000 (because we are only getting "half a library"). Currently at least 480 students visit the library daily, for inoflit lessons from me, for borrowing, and for recreation before and after school. We may be able to house our collection of 50,000 resources, we will be able to have more classes in the shed, but the facility will not match the hype and the expectations of the 21st century. 245	It will impact our library as we have been told the whole facility will shut for 2 - 5 months. However as we have not been allowed to manage the project the huge amount of money has been whittled away paying architect after architect groups, ridiculous plans which included turning a video conference/meeting room into a server room, demolishing the TL office to add a little extra space in the main body of the library, taking our adjoined classroom and turning it into a huge storeroom and even $70,000 to remove the ceiling and put in a new one for no apparent reason. Our lovely wooden bookshelves will be replaced by metal brackets on the brick walls with metal shelves, louvres being put on windows which are under wide verandahs and have good blinds and more waste. I will be a floating human resource when we have no library and the students will have to do without the resources and facilities for a long time. I might add money elsewhere in the school for an early intervention room has seen the Principal fighting to stop almost brand new carpet being replaced (what an insane waste) and an IWB proposal that would cost double all our other IWB installations for no apparent reason other than someone is trying to pocket money?? 497	The BER funding will eventually provide us with a new library. We moved out of our Library in August 2009 and currently no building has occurred! I am lucky because I have our Library set up in our hall. Whole school timetable changes to accommodate the onsite work have meant I have lost DEAR (Drop Everything and Read) half an hour each day that was used for Grade 5 and 6 borrowing and reading (while I did book returns). The number of students borrowing before and after school has dropped considerably because of the library's location. My 45 minute Library lesson often reduced to less than 40 mins because of the amount of time it takes for classes to travel between Specialist classes due to the building site. P-2 classes cannot access the library when it is open at lunchtime because of the playground set-up to accommodate the building site. It is frustrating and to see many strategies put in place to support borrowing and reading being slowly eroded over the time it is taking to build the new LRC.	Mar 28, 2010 12:01 AM

500	The BER funding is providing a new Library. That's great! BUT there has been no consultation whatever. This is a frustration. How do I know that this new Library will offer what the our school needs. I have not had any discussions with anyone or been asked for my professional opinion. The Principal cannot answer any of my questions. I have no idea what to expect in this building. What will be provided? What will the physical layout offer? How will the physical move will take place? The only indication is the BER website where I have been able to print off a floor plan. There has been no consultaion. I would have thought, being the teacher librarian in this school for 9 years, that I may have had some input into some of the internal specifications of this new building. As the new Library takes shape and the move becomes imminent I, as teacher librarian, will need to undertake a major stocktake with a major cull of all areas to avoid moving outdated, unwanted, unnecessary resources. I am wondering if I have to do the packing up and physical moving of all resources myself!	Mar 28, 2010 2:27 AM
