

To Maria Vamvakinou

Multiculturalism enquiry

Can you advise please what is meant by, "the Government's social inclusion agenda"?

There is a great deal of difference between 'immigration' and 'multiculturalism'. A country can welcome people from across the world and invite them to become Australians and while some of their ways will certainly permeate society, I want our culture to stay basically Australian, underpinned by our Christian heritage, and I am sure so does every other patriotic Aussie who really knows and understands our history.

It is good to invite people to share the good parts of their particular ethnic culture with us so that we can learn how others live, but that does not mean we have to agree with their values or share their worldview. If they want to change this nation to suit their values then that crosses the line and becomes unacceptable. That is not racist - it is a fact that all cultures are not equal as all nations' laws and values are not equally good.

Australia needs to stay Australia That is what the diggers fought for and now are giving it away.