Question No: 533

Topic: Indexing Pensions and Non-Pension Payments to CPI

Hansard Page: Written

Senator Brown asked:

Can the Department then indicate how much a person on the DSP for this period of time (the average duration of a person on the Disability Support Pension) is likely to receive over this period:

- a. Under the current arrangement?
- b. Under a CPI indexation arrangement?

Answer:

This is not a calculation that the department would do as it would be subject to fluctuation from a range of sources. At each indexation point there would be variations to the parameters used for indexation. There are also changes to individuals' circumstances over their duration on payment as their pension rate is affected by a range of factors, including changes in marital status, housing tenure and income and assets levels. Average duration will also change with social and economic changes in the economy, including financial returns and with policy changes.
