Department of Education Question No. ED0306_15

Senator Back asked on 4 June 2014, Hansard page 66

Question

Curriculum Review Panel submissions

My understanding is the team that is supporting the reviewers are currently quantifying and codifying that sort of information so the reviewers have that easily to hand. CHAIR: And has the invitation been placed for people to make submissions in confidence so that either they or, if they are from an institution, the name of the institution does not have to be made public? Mr Cook: I am not aware of that. I will take that on notice.

Answer

The online submission form for the Review offered people the option to have their submission published without including their name or organisation.

The Department of Education will only publish a person's name or organisation in connection with a submission if that person has agreed to the publication of these details.
